

5 Mediterranean Bedroom Interior Decor Design Ideas

A bedroom is our personal sanctuary. A retreat from the rest of the world. We all want our bedroom to be a comfortable and inviting space while staying attractive at the same time. Mediterranean style design is one such popular style for doing up your bedroom interior decor. It is a style that speaks luxury as well as laid back!

When we think 'Mediterranean', we think Azure sea, beaches, white decor and comfort. But there's more to Mediterranean decor than just this. Over time, this style has been influenced by regional European design elements. It has a rustic charm which is dominated by aqua & earthy colour schemes and interspersed with traditional, contemporary and modern design languages.

The Mediterranean style interior decor is warm and inviting which makes it the perfect theme for a bedroom's interior design. The variety of options and combinations makes this an easier style to pull off. Consequently, this is also one of the most popular styles of bedroom interior home decor designs. The ideas just flow and the possibilities are limitless.

Let's take a closer look at some simple, yet beautiful ways to create a bedroom of dreams with the Mediterranean influence.

THE SPANISH STYLE MEDITERRANEAN BEDROOM

The Mediterranean style with a Spanish influence uses bold and bright bedroom colours which showcase the region's influence. They are brought forth in the wrought iron furniture, patterned tile floors and rich lively furnishings. Stucco walls are also signature elements of this style. The styling can be subtle as well as bold.

The bright coloured walls are well complemented by matching colourful textiles used in furnishings. Splashes of white in the mix bring out the colours and make them shine. Where Mediterranean drapes are usually white, experimenting with rich, bold colours is highly recommended as this style of decoration can carry it off quite well.

The Spanish style uses more earthy tones, oranges, ochres and yellows that mix freely with colour shades from the aqua family. This style may be a bit over the top, and yet if done properly, never looks too loud or gaudy. Yes! There's a fine line between colourful and gaudy, but this style manages to stay on the right side.

With so many shades to choose from, a little expert help goes a long way in keeping things classy, without going overboard in experimentation.

THE ITALIAN STYLE MEDITERRANEAN BEDROOM

While the Spanish-Mediterranean style uses bold and bright colours, the Italian style is comparatively very subdued in the use of colours. Rich bold colours are used only as accents in textiles and furnishings, while neutral earthy colours dominate. This style evokes a sense of old-world charm with its conservative use of colours.

Wooden flooring and exposed wooden ceiling beams are a couple of signature features of the Italian Mediterranean style of decor. The furniture is oversized and luxurious, reminiscent of the times when space wasn't a constraint and furniture was made to last for decades rather than years. The wooden flooring, as well as the furniture, are stained dark to offset the domination of neutral colours.

Even the walls carry a texture. More often than not, it will either be Venetian plaster or a distressed stone finish. But it is certainly not restricted to just that and newer textures can be experimented with. The drapes and furnishings use more of reds and oranges to add little islands of colour in the sea of neutral hues.

An Italian Mediterranean decor brings a luxurious touch to the bedroom, which coupled with modern conveniences, is an eclectic mix of the best of two worlds.

THE GREEK STYLE MEDITERRANEAN BEDROOM

The Greek style is probably the most well-known Mediterranean style of decor. The Greek style makes liberal use of the deep blues, bright aquas and crisp turquoises, which are the colours of the sea. In addition to the blues, this style also uses a lot of white in the mix.

Usually, the walls are textured with white plaster and even the floors are whitewashed. Also, there are influences of Greek architecture in the Greek Mediterranean decor style which is manifested in the form of pillars and circular columns. Repeating patterns, which are a mainstay of Greek architecture, can also be used to line ceilings or on the skirting around the floor.

Colours Used: Mild Sea (9240); Sail Boat (7444)

The blues, turquoises and whites can also be carried in the textiles used for curtains and furnishings. The Greek influence can be further exerted in the form of Greek art and sculptures. For example, a big elongated vase, which is the quintessential Greek pottery, can make a wonderful corner piece in the bedroom.

THE CONTEMPORARY MEDITERRANEAN STYLE

The contemporary style of Mediterranean decor offers many options with a wonderful blend of traditional and contemporary elements. This style offers itself to the mix-n-match with an aplomb that is difficult to pull off with some other styles. The blend can be as diverse as pairing an ornate four-poster bed with some of the most ultra-modern lamps available.

There's no doubt that the Mediterranean style is a luxurious affair. Mixing contemporary elements with the traditional gives it a different class altogether. This, along with true Mediterranean textiles and furnishings serve to give character to a room which is seldom found elsewhere.

Colours Used: Rustic Turquoise (7438); Sonnet (L146)

A mixture of different regional styles also qualifies as a contemporary twist to the traditional Mediterranean decor. A bedroom can have a Greek influence with luxurious furnishings, the Italian influence with dark wooden flooring and furniture & the Spanish influence with stucco walls.

All it takes is a bit of imagination or a bit of experienced help!

A MODERN TWIST ON THE MEDITERRANEAN STYLE

A blend of modern furniture, faux wood beams and rustic decor elements create a unique decor idea which can be a diverse combination of the old and new. The binding element that will tie these elements together is colour. A well-thought-out colour scheme will seamlessly tie all the decor elements together to create a harmony that flows smoothly across the room.

Wallpaper Used: Mimosa

A suitable colour scheme can either be achieved with colours or wallpapers or even a combination of these two. The right combination will not only tie all the elements together but will also elevate the decor with a modern twist.

Takeaway!

There's a reason why Mediterranean decor is so popular among homeowners! It's because of the plenty of options it serves. The only objective to be kept in mind while doing modern Mediterranean decor is that the final result is coherent and crisp. A decor which conveys a mood! With so many different styles that can be applied to a broader concept, it is just a matter of choosing the right one which suits your style sensibilities.
